Day 1: Half-day tour of Bhaktapur old town

During your Bhaktapur tour, you will visit some beautiful palace as below

55 Window Palace: This is the main architectural structure that dominates the entire Durbar Square. This magnificent monument was built in the 15th century AD. C. for King Bhupatindra Malla sits on a great pillar and prays to God.

Golden Gate - This is the main entrance to the Bhaktapur Royal palace. The artisan who worked on this wonderful door must come from heaven

Lion Gate - Two beautiful stone statues of Hindu deities are installed on either side of this gate. The hands of the craftsmen who did this are said to have been cut off immediately after he put the finishing touches on them. A jealous king of Bhadgaon did this so that the craftsman could no longer produce such arts.

Mini Pashupati Temple: Some people call it the temple of real dreams. Folklore says: Once a Bhadgaon king who was a great follower of Lord Pashupati had a dream in which Lord told the king to build a temple for Pashupati right in front of this palace.

Vatsala Temple: This temple, dedicated to a mother goddess, is filled with intricate stonework. This temple is known for its dog bell. This bell is believed to produce a fatal blow when it rings.

Nyatapola Temple: It is one of the most renowned pagodas in Nepal. Nyatapola in Newari means fire tires, the symbol for five basic elements. It is the tallest pagoda in Nepal ever built with such architectural perfection and artistic beauty. This temple is dedicated to Siddhi Laxmi, the tantric goddess of supreme power and success.

Museum: The museum is a collection of ancient objects that represent history and civilization. Art and architecture, paintings, wood carvings are the main attractions of the museum.
